

IMMIGRATION

Citizens and workers on both sides of the border face the same enemy. In the U.S., companies are cutting jobs and lowering real wages and benefits to make more profits and raise their stock market ratings.

So called “free trade” agreements are destroying the economies of Mexico and other Latin American countries causing more and more workers to cross the border for jobs.

Republicans and Democrats both claim we need more border security. But “security” measures have made crossing the border more dangerous for Latino workers. The new border fences destroy the environment and local cultures, and ruin the lives of workers who are caught, jailed, injured or killed.

As long as immigrants live in fear and uncertainly they will be second class workers. If immigrant workers enjoy full human rights, they can fight side by side with the rest of us for decent wages, safe working conditions, good education, and full health care.
